

University of Mississippi and Tougaloo College

Collaboration

The Department of Psychiatry at the University of Mississippi and Tougaloo College are entering efforts to collaborate together for future projects. Part of what Tougaloo brings is their coordination with the Historically Black Colleges and University Network.

Tougaloo College and the HBCU Faculty Development Network

The Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) Faculty Development Network (HBCUFDN) is housed within the Center for Civic Engagement & Social Responsibility at Tougaloo College, a small, African American, private, coeducational liberal arts institution, which has won national respect for its high academic standards and level of social commitment. Tougaloo College has also established relationships with several prestigious universities facilitating the entrance of its students into engineering, medicine, law, graduate studies, and other post-baccalaureate educational experiences.

Attending partners

Grayson Norquist, MD, MSPH
UMiss Department of Psychiatry gnorquist@psychiatry.umsmed.edu

Gloria Roberts-Brown
Tougaloo College
grbrown@bellsouth.net